

Attention: Please do not use Expired Containers

- All specimen collection containers have expiration dates. Expired collection containers can compromise quality and are a cause for rejection.
- As part of good general specimen collection practices, please inspect your specimen collection material for the expiration date before collecting specimens.
- Please see the images to the right with their expiration dates circled in red.
- Please ensure containers nearing expiration are rotated for first-use.
- Contact Main Lab or Microbiology to obtain new containers.
